LOCAL POST OFFICE HANDLES $303,447 IN INTERNATIONAL OUTGOING MONEY ORDERS

MOST OF THIS SUM REPRESENTS WAGES OF WORKERS SENT ABROAD

Total Money Order Business Done During Fiscal Year, Including 50 Subsidiary Offices, Is $1,328,080

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, there was sent out of Bridgeport, by international money order, $303,447.44. There came into the city, from foreign countries, but $24,947.18. That great sum, passing three tenths of a million, was only a portion of the earnings of foreign born persons working in this country sent to the home lands and the bulk of the sum represented such earnings. Large sums also went by bank drafts and other forms of exchange. These interesting figures are from statistics furnished by Postmaster W. H. Marigold, to the Farmer, today, relative to the money order business of the local office and the registered mail.

The total money order receipts of the office reached the magnificent sum of $1,328,080 for the year.

Of this amount $338,566.16 represented the intake of some 50 smaller offices subsidiary to the Bridgeport office, of which Ansonia, Derby and Shelton are the largest.

The total number of international orders issued in the city was 15,103; 4,28 at East Side station, 1,409 at West End station, 9,406 at main office.

The amount issued by the East Side Station was $30,600.63, by the West End station $24,906.20. The fees for issuance amounted to $3,125.25, entire city.

The total domestic money orders issued were $289,418.05.

Domestic orders paid were $461,935.32.

Some interesting facts relative to the amount of money order work done by the substitution are contained in the following table prepared under the supervision of Postmaster Marigold.

GRIPPIN LOSES TAX SUIT AGAINST CITY

JUDGE SCOTT FINDS THAT HE DID NOT AVAIL HIMSELF OF STATUTORY REMEDY AND THAT HIS PAYMENT WAS VOLUNTARY

Had Appealed from Assessment of $15,000 on His Handsome Residence at Park and Linden Avenue, Claiming Overvaluation

A decision was yesterday handed down by Judge Scott of the court of Common Pleas, which was in the case of William A. Griffin against the city of Bridgeport. In his decision Judge Scott sustained the demurrer filed by the city to the plaintiff's complaint. This action has been pending for some time in the court of Common Pleas and will now probably be appealed to the Supreme court.

The case involved a question as to the taxation of Mr. Griffin's handsome residence in Park avenue near Seaside Park. In his complaint, the plaintiff alleges that on September 1, 1908, he was assessed for the taxes on the increase in the valuation. The city through the city attorney filed a demurrer to the complaint and maintained that the plaintiff had no standing in the case, because he had failed to appeal to the board of relief and had not taken the matter to the Superior court, as provided by statute, and for the further reason that the payment of the taxes, even though under protest, was a voluntary payment.

The Common Pleas court has sustained the city's demurrer and Judge Scott, in his memorandum of decision, said that Mr. Griffin, the plaintiff, is now without remedy on account of his failure to appeal to the board of relief. And he further holds that the collection of the taxes, under protest, merely to avoid the interest, does not make it an involuntary payment. He says that if there was any compulsion on the part of the city authorities in the collection of the taxes, then the payment was voluntary.

AND THE CAPTAIN GAVE UP THE BOAT TO MRS. FLIMM

Peter Hackett, the valiant sleuth from whom no criminal hides the truth, set out today to find a boat that went adrift from a harbor boat. The boat was owned by Mrs. Flimm, who has two sons, LeRoy and Jim.

The lady traced the missing craft out in the harbor to a raft. Held by the dredgers' work there, the boat, it seemed, was gone for fair. But Mrs. Flimm told the police this thieving business must cease.

Detective Pete and Mrs. Flimm boarded another boat, and Jim and Roy with manful strokes sent them speeding to the dredger folks.

"Give up that boat," then cried out Pete, and he would rather fight than eat. "Stand back, land lubber," the skipper cried, and grasped a bale stake at his side.

Pete stood upon the rowboat and cried, "I'll take that rowboat now."

The skipper threw his coat on deck and yelled, "I'll keep that boat by heck. It came floating down the side, and bumped against the dredger's side. I'll save my rights away and you can't take my rights away. What right have you to board my craft? I've half a mind to take you aft and mighty overboard."

"And I expect them all, forsooth. Look upon this badge of gold; though you may call me overboard I know this badge gives me the right to make arrests to Bridgeport light. I'll take you in this very day, if you give me much more delay. Give back that boat to Mrs. Flimm, or you will have to fight, or swim."

"Well," growled the skipper, in his throat, "take back the plagued, gosh darned boat! I came floating here last night and I maintain I have the right to keep it as my very own until substantial proof is shown of ownership by Mrs. Flimm or any other Tom or Jim."

"Go see Fred Enos," then quoth Pete, and then his friend beat a quick retreat. But as he climbed down from the boat, he grasped the bow of the lost boat. "I seize this boat, by gum," said he, and sure enough he had been petted by Mrs. Flimm's husky boys turned her sorrows into joys, for rowing back with might and main they brought the lost craft home again.

"This harbor business," growled Pete, "is all right, but it wets my feet."

(Ed. Note.—One of the Farmer staff was sent home suffering from the heat, after he had turned out the above gem.)

The Irish crochets had pins and neck pins, and easily cleaned with the floral hat pins use gasoline a nail brush and rich white soap lather is better for the neck pins or the crochets buttons.

$300 NOT ENOUGH FOR CHILD'S LIE

Court Sustains Finding in Suit of McMahon Estate, that It Has No Title In Long Beach

The McMahon estate is denied title to Long Beach, losing its suit against Stratford.

The decision of Judge George W. Wheeler, setting aside a verdict of $300 for the death of a child is sustained.

The judges of the supreme court of errors, after a consultation held in New Haven, yesterday, gave opinion in twenty-three cases. In a suit brought to recover on a policy insurance and branches, damages by strikes, a judgment of $29,449.49 is affirmed. In another case the action of the lower court in refusing to interfere in the estate of either party to a suit is sustained.

An abstract follows:

Charles V. McCann, administrator, against Peter Goetz. An action for damages for personal injuries resulting in the death of the plaintiff's intestate alleged to have been caused by the defendant's negligence. Tried before Judge G. W. Wheeler and an appeal was taken. Chief Justice Hall finds no error. The intestate was one Charles D. McCann, a boy who, being in the car of the defendant, which he was riding was about to be struck by an automobile, jumped from the wagon and was struck and killed by the auto. The jury returned a verdict giving the plaintiff $300. The court told the jury that if the verdict ought to be in favor of the plaintiff the assessment of damages at $300 was inadequate and ordered the jury to deliberate further. They returned the same verdict a second time, whereupon he accepted it, set it aside, and ordered a new trial.

State against Theodore C. Goetz. Goetz was tried for manslaughter before Judge Williams and a jury and was found guilty. The plaintiff, in alleged errors in the ruling of the court. No errors. Opinion by Chief Justice Hall.

Dundon against Richard Dundon; an action to secure a settlement of partnership affairs, to secure an accounting and the appointment of a receiver. The court found for the plaintiff and rendered judgment for him to recover $5,979.08 and his costs. The defendant appealed. There is no error and the opinion is by Judge Robinson.

Casey & Hurley against the MacFarlane Brothers Manufacturing Company an action for recovery of work and material, tried before Judge Burpee, who found judgment for the plaintiff from which the defendant appealed. There is no error and the opinion is by Judge Robinson.

Max Waxshon against A. Elwood & Sons and others; an action for the appointment of a receiver and an accounting. The court declined to interfere in behalf of either party and the plaintiff appealed. No error is found by Judge Robinson.

John H. McMahon and others against the town of Stratford and others; an action to quit title of a piece of land. Long Beach Judge Gager found that the plaintiffs had no title in the premises and an appeal was taken. No error. The opinion is by Judge Robinson.

State against Herbert B. Lanyon. Information for embezzlement, heard by Judge Williams and a jury; verdict against the defendant. No error. The opinion is by Judge Thayer.

FIREWORKS EXPLOSION IS FATAL

Lives of Many Firemen Endangered and Teamster
With Horses Blown
Into Field

Several Houses Near Everett Bay State Plant Take Fire and Are Destroyed

(Special from United Press.)

Everett, Mass., July 13.—The lives of a score of firemen were endangered here today and one was badly burned by the explosion of a big store building at the plant of the National Fireworks company. Ignited by a spark from a dump blaze the fireworks in a 100 foot structure two stories high blew up and the whole structure, with a roar that could be heard for miles sailed skyward amid a perfect shower of rockets.

Called by a still alarm when the dump fire was discovered, Engine Co. No. 1 of this town were just laying their hoses beside the building when the big explosion came. Captain J. A. Cameron and a number of other firemen were caught in the blast of flame and Cameron, all his clothing burned off, was forced to crawl 200 feet through a perfect inferno of fire. He is badly burned but will live. When the crash came John McGonigle, a teamster, was driving east the plant. His horses and wagon were blown bodily into a nearby field, where they still lie, surrounded by blazing rockets. There is nothing to be seen of the man and it is feared he has perished. Across the street from the structure which exploded were a number of small houses. These took fire and consumed. The total loss as at present estimated is in the neighborhood of $20,000.

MISS EGGERTON FREED; EVIDENCE NOT SUFFICIENT

Accompanied By Sister,
Brother-in-Law and Fiance
She Appears in City
Court

BUYING ENGAGEMENT RING

Jeweler Wittstein Called In Police, Declaring Woman
Attempted to Take Diamond Ring

Florence May Eggerton, accused of theft of a diamond ring, was discharged from custody in the City court today when Judge Foster, interrupting the defence in its effort to refute the charge, declared he was not willing to find her guilty on the evidence submitted, and recommended that Prosecutor DeLaney should press the charge no further. Guided by the suggestion of the court, DeLaney nolleed the case.

Miss Eggerton was arrested late in the afternoon of July 1 at the store of Max Wittstein, 1126 Main street. Wittstein accused her of attempting to steal a diamond ring. The charge was substantiated by the statement of Private Detective Chaffield, who happens to be a member of the special police department, and who was sitting in the store when the young woman entered.

The police were convinced that Miss Eggerton was either wholly innocent or was one of the cleverest thieves they had encountered, for she understood the meaning of the charge and the meaning of the evidence against her. She was sitting in the store when the young woman entered.

Before Judge Wilder more than a week ago the case was tried out. Wittstein and Chaffield testified, and the defendant denied the charge. It was intimated at that time that she was about to marry, and had entered the store to buy an engagement ring. She gave as her fiancé, Carroll avenue.

Max Waxshon against A. Elwood & Sons and others; an action for the appointment of a receiver and an accounting. The court declined to interfere in behalf of either party and the plaintiff appealed. No error is found by Judge Robinson.

MUST CHOOSE BETWEEN WIFE AND THE AIR

New York, July 13.—Clifford B. Harmon must choose between his airship and his wife—that is, Mrs. Harmon says she "hopes my husband is satisfied with his flying efforts of the past and will stop them now." Mr. Harmon, who has five French machinists that he keeps busy tinkering with his airships, is trying to convince his wife that he is not going to be killed. In the meantime he is resting from his attack on a tree, the tree still being in position, while Mr. Harmon is nursing a number of bruises. Mr. Harmon is one of the wealthiest real estate men in New York. Riding in the air is his hobby. He wants to enter some of the races between New York and Chicago, but Mrs. Harmon says no, and in the long distance contest it looks as though Mrs. Harmon would win.

WASHINGTON'S FALSE TEETH ON SHOW

Cleveland, July 13.—George Washington's false teeth are to form a part of the exhibit of oral hygiene, which is to be a feature of the convention of the National Association of Dental Surgeons at Denver next week.

The teeth are here in the office of Dr. W. G. Ebersole, chairman of the committee on Oral Hygiene. They were worn by the Father of his Country at his first and second inaugurations. The teeth are of ivory, attached to plates of gold, with a cement of German silver. Gold springs and hinges complete the uncomfortable instrument. Washington's heirs kept the teeth until some years ago, when they turned them over to the care of the Baltimore College of Dentistry.

NOTED GERMAN AVIATOR AND FOUR COMPANIONS ARE DASHED TO DEATH

HERR ERBALOCH IN DIRIGIBLE BALLOON OF HIS OWN INVENTION FALLS 5,000 FEET AND
ALL ARE HORRIBLY MANGLED

Cause of Accident in Doubt, But Experts Think that Sun's Rays Expanded Gas in the Balloons Until
They Could No Longer Stand Strain—Others Believe
One of 125 Horse Power Motors Exploded.

(Special from United Press.)
Cologne, Germany, July 13.—Herr Erbaloch, the world renowned German scientist and aviator, and four companions were dashed to death today near Pattscheid, East Germany, when their dirigible balloon, the Erbsloeh, named after its inventor and constructor, fell from a height of five thousand feet. Five heaps of crushed flesh and bone, absolutely unrecognizable, lay beneath the debris of the wrecked balloon when those who witnessed the fall reached the spot.

The fatal voyage had lasted only forty-five minutes. The dirigible was almost over the village of Pattscheid in the Rhine province.

Balloons are divided as to the probable cause of the accident. Some believe the sun's rays expanded the gas in the balloons until they could no longer stand the strain while others believe one of the 125 horsepower gasoline motors exploded.

The dirigible went aloft early today from Dusseldorf, from which point the ill-fated Zeppelin passenger liner started her last voyage. In the balloon car were Erbsloeh and two companions, together with the two chauffeurs. It was to take care of the gasoline engines.

While near Pattscheid one of the balloons in the great balloon burst and in a twinkling all the gas bags had been torn to bits. The heavy and the fragments of the gas bag fell like a plummet. Erbsloeh and his companions fell five thousand feet to their deaths. The bodies were found and the bodies declare they never saw human forms so horribly mangled.

The dirigible was so completely wrecked by the fall that it is impossible to learn just what caused the fatal accident. The disaster in all its details remains a mystery. It is believed the French army dirigible several months ago when five French officers met death by the collapse of the balloon.

The Erbsloeh belonged to the Rhine Aerial Club. It resembled a miniature Zeppelin dirigible but one-sixth the size of the famous one. The dirigible consisted of 12 balloons placed side by side in a rigid and covered frame, like the water tight compartments of a ship. A long aluminum car for the engines and passengers was swung below the gas bags. The car contained two gasoline engines, each of 125 horsepower, which drove the fore and aft propellers that gave headway to the airship.

The Erbsloeh had made several eminently satisfactory short flights and was regarded as one of the best types of modern dirigibles, being far less cumbersome than the monster Zeppelin.

Herr Oscar Erbaloch, the aviator, was well known in the United States having piloted the German balloon Yenners in the international balloon races held in St. Louis in 1907. The Pommern rose in St. Louis and landed in New Jersey, coming down only five thousand feet. Five heaps of crushed flesh and bone, absolutely unrecognizable, lay beneath the debris of the wrecked balloon when those who witnessed the fall reached the spot.

AVIATOR PFITZER BEATEN BY GAME SHOTS HIMSELF

(Special from United Press.)
Marblehead, Mass., July 13.—Partial fulfillment of the prophecy of Madame Thebes, the French seeress who predicted death to 37 aviators, last Sunday was in the probable suicide of Lieutenant A. L. Pfitzer of Hungary who has been employed as an aviator at the Burgess plant at Plum Island. Pfitzer is believed to have shot himself while in a boat off this port and to have fallen dying into the sea. Search is being made today for his body and a reward for its recovery is offered.

Pfitzer, who was 35 years old, was an ex-officer of the Hungarian artillery and a member of an old and aristocratic family of that country.

"The game has me beaten," Pfitzer said after an accident last Sunday and that night, after a long stroll over the sandhills he came back to the aviation plant carrying a blood
